JONAH'S NEWEST MESSAGE COMPASSION

Jonah's newest message has just been released. The title is "Compassion." What is compassion? What element is needed for one to have true compassion? Many confuse the energy of "feeling sorry for", for compassion. Jonah explains what occurs to the mind, body, and spirit when compassion is used. He also explains what occurs energetically to the mind, body, and spirit when "feeling sorry for" occurs.

The CD or Cassette format may be ordered on www.Jonahlifeinstitute.com, or you may send a check to the address listed at the bottom of this newsletter.

For orders in the U. S. Postage & Handling cost is 20% of subtotal, up to $8.00. All orders outside the U.S. Postage & Handling cost is 30% of subtotal, up to $18.00. All orders in U.S. funds only. Please allow up to 2-3 weeks for your item(s) to arrive. Colorado residents add 3.9% tax.

TWO MORE TAPES NOW ON CD FORMAT

Learning to Feel

Jonah's message on relearning how to feel, not just experiencing emotions. He talks about the benefit of learning to feel what is occurring in your mind, body and environment. When you become aware of an event before it occurs in the physical, you can prepare. Do you know the difference between truly feeling and merely expressing emotions?

LIE, CHEAT, AND STEAL A PATH TO ENLIGHTENMENT???

Do you tell others you are on a spiritual path and then lie to your self or others? Are you on your path or attempting to manifest some one else's vision? How many unknowingly use these energies seeking enlightenment; only to find depression, anger and fear, the result of their desires and choices.

Children of the 21st Century By Hossca Harrison

Today's teens are different, they think differently, feel differently, and respond differently. Some say every generation is different, this is true, but this generation of children are not only different they are uniquely aware of who they are and their purpose, when they are not injured. The generations of past children so often grew up to be just like their parents. This generation of children will not and cannot grow up to be just like their parents.

I have worked with teens for many years. With each troubled teen I have worked with I find troubled parents, confused parents, or parents in pain. Does that mean the parents are bad parents, indeed not. It does mean there is a lack of understanding between parent and child. How many mixed messages do we give our children? We tell our children drugs are wrong, yet how many children are placed on “legal” drugs for ADD, ADHD, Bi-Polar, or Depression? How many children come from homes where the parents are not living together. We tell these children to love, to be respectful, as they watch their parents fight. Children learn much more by example than the spoken word of the parents or teachers.

These children carry a very different consciousness than we do; many do not and will not accept the old ways of believing and behaving. If they are forced to, it will lead to confusion and rebellion creating much anxiety within their parents and families.

Allow yourself to be open to their consciousness, allow yourself to learn from your children. Many of these children have tremendous creativity but not necessarily in the form you think it should look. Be open to their creativity and watch how your child will begin to bond with you in a positive way.

It is important to teach our children how to make choices and to learn the consequences of each choice. To teach this we must also take responsibility for our own choices. If we do not our children will see through this and lose respect, thus losing the communication we so deeply desire from our children.

Most of the parents of children I have worked with want the best for their children. They love their children. Ask yourself this question; is my old program, my old way of believing, my old way of relating a loving healing message for my child of the 21st century? Do you have a loving relationship with your child? Does your child have a loving relationship with you?

Does your child carry such anger and depression the lines of communication have shut down? Is it time to seek outside assistance? If this is so, seek assistance from ones who understand your child. Ones who will work with your child to bring out your child’s ability, whatever that ability may be. My teacher taught me that before anger and depression can exist, first there must be suppression, then compression, then depression and anger. Search for assistance from ones who will help your child to find what has been suppressed, then the healing can begin. When the depression lifts a child learns to feel, then they learn to heal.
